This is the best course I have ever been to. The course encouraged interaction between different personalities, and it was really amazing to see why there can be conflict. I have really grown as a person in my work environment and my personal life. Thank you, Peter and Denise – you have really changed me.”

Outcomes
For the Organisation:
This workshop will improve your organisation’s capability by building and broadening the emotional intelligence competencies required to increase team satisfaction and performance. Your managers will return to work with a solid understanding of self-awareness, self-management and empathy so they can foster highly functioning relationships, motivate others and lead their teams.

For the Individual:
Participants will go on an active journey towards developing the skills and mindsets to:
— Increase self-awareness, emotional resilience and learning agility
— Understand, adapt and improve impact and presence
— Tune-in, listen and empathise with others
— Recognise and manage disempowering behaviours
— Identify and respond effectively to emotional cues in self and others
— Implement tools and adopt new practices based on a personal action plan and supported by a post-program coaching session

The Program Experience:
This is a highly interactive program involving practical individual skill-building exercises, reflection techniques, experiential group learning activities, personal coaching and video playback.

Post-program, participants have the opportunity to have a 1:1 coaching session to further assist with transferring newly acquired skills into the workplace and work through individual areas for development.

Program Director:
Denise Weinreis is a specialist in coaching executives and project teams to enhance personal energy, leadership and teamwork. For the past 15 years, Denise has worked as a trainer and coach in a range of industries including aviation, construction, engineering, health services and manufacturing.

Presenter:
Peter Fisher draws on the fundamental methodologies of an actor’s training to design innovative and highly interactive sessions with a strong focus on behavioural issues related to leadership and personal development. Peter has earned a reputation as an energetic facilitator and designer of unique purpose built learning environments.
