THE CENTRE'S PERFORMANCE IN RELATION TO ITS OBJECTIVES FOR 2013

Objective 1. To promote better understanding of labour markets and industrial relations

Achievements:

- In 2013 the IRRC, through The Economic and Labour Relations Review, published refereed articles and book reviews designed to promote an understanding of labour markets/economics. Full details of this appear under objective 4 below.

Objective 2. To promote safe, engaged, productive and fair workplaces

Achievements: Safety

IRRC Director Professor Michael Quinlan continued in his role as an internationally-recognised authority on workplace health and safety.

- Professor Quinlan held three ARC Grants with researchers at the University of Sydney - one on the impacts of traumatic death at work, the other on the safety of home care workers, and co-authored 3 refereed journal articles from this work. The Death at Work- Improving Support for Families Project is a world first study to pinpoint ways to improve support for partners and families following work-related tragedies. The third ARC grant examines how precarious employment affects health, and testing a model in this regard.
- Professor Quinlan had been engaged by the New Zealand Department of Labour to conduct an international comparison of mine safety regulation. In 2013 Professor Quinlan served in the Expert Reference Group to support implementation of the recommendations from the Royal Commission of Inquiry into the Pike River mining tragedy.
- Professors Michael Quinlan and David Walters (Cardiff and IRRC), with Professor Katherine Lippel, University of Ottawa, were successful applicants for a University of Ottawa grant for a three-country study led by Professor Lippel, of the regulatory effectiveness of workers compensation and workplace health and safety legislation. As a result, Dr Elsa Underhill, from Deakin University, and a participant in the project, joined the IRRC as a Visitor.
- Professor Quinlan gained publication of three journal articles and a book chapter on aspects of workplace safety (see publication list on Precarious and hazardous work: the health and safety of merchant seamen 1815-1935 in the A* journal Social History 38(3)).
- With IRRC Associates Sarah Gregson and Ian Hampson, Professor Quinlan had published an article in the international journal Safety Science 57 entitled 'Outsourcing and offshoring aircraft maintenance in the US: Implications for safety';
- Professor Michael Quinlan was the international advisor/expert for the preparation of a report prepared for the European Agency for Health and Safety at Work. He and Professor David Walters were among the three authors of the report entitled Analysis of the Determinants of Occupational Health and Safety in a Selection of EU Member States. Luxembourg, 2013.
- Professor Quinlan also co-authored a report for the ILO on ways to improve working conditions in SMEs.
- Professor Quinlan produced a strategy paper for Safework Australia: Supply chains and networks. Safework Australia, Canberra.

<http://www.safeworkaustralia.gov.au/sites/swa/about/publications/pages/supply---chains---and--networks---australian---strategy---paper>

- In September 2013 Professor Michael Quinlan submitted an expert witness statement in The Transport Workers Union safe rates case before the Road Safety Remuneration Tribunal (RTO2013/1).

Achievements: Engagement and Productivity

In 2013 the IRRC continued to pursue its mission of providing research-backed output that makes a practical difference in workplaces:

- In January 2013 the IRRC successfully tendered to the Australian Workforce and Productivity Agency for selection as a preferred provider.
- From March to September Professor Raja Junankar undertook a research consultancy, 'Employment and Productivity, Phase 2', with the International Labour Organisation. This project was designed to establish that productivity is not best achieved at the expense of employment security.
- Professor Junankar was a Special Guest invited to the Launch of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia Pacific Survey 2013, United Nations Information Centre, 18th April, Canberra.
- Professor Junankar presented an Invited Paper, 'Is there a trade-off between employment and productivity?' Invited Paper presented to the International Labour Organisation Expert Seminar on More and better jobs for inclusive growth, Geneva 28-29 November 2013.
- IRRC Associates Anne Junor, Ian Hampson, David Morgan and Celia Briar continued to work on the Project entitled Building Professional Skills: Recognising and Developing the Value Created by the Professional and Technical Workforce in the UNSW Division of Finance and Operations in order to produce a set of tools to promote cooperation across work units and improve client and customer engagement. The project gained further funding for the construction of an interactive website for the recognition and development of non-technical skills during 2013-4.
- IRRC Steering Committee member Professor Michael O'Donnell co-edited a symposium in the East Asian Development State in The Economic and Labour Relations Review (Vol 24-4, December).

Achievements: Fair Work

In 2013, the work of the IRRC clearly made a difference to pay and employment equity:

- In 2013, the Australian Workplace Gender Equality Agency continued to provide links to the IRRC Spotlight tools in its online Gender Equality training package.
- Associate Professors Ian Hampson and Anne Junor were featured in the UNSW publication, 10 Innovations that changed our world, for their research leading to a toolkit for identifying under-recognised skills, used in a landmark equal remuneration case in 2012. This evidence contributed to the workplace arbiter recommending pay rises of between 19% and 45% to 150,000 social and community services workers, the vast majority of them low-paid women. It was the 'first step in addressing the historical undervaluing of community sector workers' according the ACOSS's chief executive, Cassandra Goldie.
- The Skills recognition methodology of A. Junor and I. Hampson, particularly its use for equal remuneration, was rated B as having ('very considerable impact') in the 2012/13 ATN/G08 Excellence in Research Innovation trial -'The adoption of research has produced significant impact in terms of the social, economic, environmental, and/or cultural benefits for the wider community, regionally within Australia, nationally or internationally'.

- IRRC Associate Shaun Wilson co-edited a Special Issue of The Economic and Labour Relations Review (Volume 24-3), on Precarious work: Economic, sociological and political perspectives. This covered youth and migrant employment issues, and gained good media coverage, especially for an article on Indian workers on 457 Visas.
- Tanya Carney and Anne Junor presented a paper entitled 'Wanted! Flexibility and security: Finding a package of terms and conditions that work for employed mothers', at the Fifth International Community, Work and Family Conference, University of Sydney, 15-19 July.

Objective 3. To encourage the recognition, development and utilisation of skills

In 2013, skill and workforce development were key themes of the research conducted on a day-to-day basis in the IRRC

Achievements

- Spotlight Tool for recognising and developing service skills:
The website www.spotlightworkskills.com, first built 2012 by IRRC Associate, Dr Celia Briar, with New Zealand and international versions, continued to operate in 2013 using funds transferred from the Judith Miller Grant to the New Zealand Council of Social Service.
The original skills recognition toolkit continued to be accessible via a link on the IRRC website.
- Linkage Grant The Future of Aircraft Maintenance in Australia: Workforce Capability, Aviation Safety and industry development (LP110100335)
One aspect of work in this project in 2013 involved mapping changes to the licensing and training system for aircraft maintenance engineers, experiences of deskilling, and changing patterns of skill utilisation.
- Linkage Grant Recognising the Skill in Jobs Traditionally Considered Unskilled (LP1102200888)
In 2013 this project moved into its data analysis and validation phase. The researchers analysed case study data, compiled reports and participated in forums with industry, skill council and training provider representatives.
- Building Professional Skills – UNSW Division of Finance and Operations. This project moved into its validation stage, on the basis of which implementation tools were developed.
- SW Sydney Manufacturing and Engineering Skills Taskforce - survey work was carried out by Doug Fraser and Anne Junor pro bono to ascertain employer skill requirements and deployment. This worked was planned as a pilot to a larger scale study of manufacturing and skill utilisation in the region.

Objective 4. Continue to build the impact of The Economic and Labour Relations Review

The Economic and Labour Relations Review was the major publishing activity of the IRRC in 2013. It is a refereed journal with a focus on contemporary issues, developments and policy-making in the fields of economics and labour relations. 2013 marked the beginning of the ELRR's publication by SAGE UK, a move designed to raise the journal's international profile and increase its readership through SAGE's global online marketing resources. During 2013, four issues were published:

- ELRR 24 (1) focused on the aftermath of the global financial crisis, and included articles on the US budgetary system, the role of central banks, exchange rates and the macroeconomy in the context of the financial crisis.

- ELRR 24 (2) was a festschrift in honour of the distinguished Australian labour market economist Professor John Nevile
- Precarious employment continued to be a particular focus of IRRRC work: IRRRC Associate Dr Shaun Wilson (with Dr Norbert Ebert) was joint guest editor for ELRR 24 (3) on the sociological impacts of precarious employment. This issue was based on a symposium on precarious work held by the Department of Sociology at Macquarie University in September 2012.

The ELRR continued its international focus with issue 24 (4), a symposium on the East Asian Developmental State, guest edited by Professors Michael O'Donnell and Mark Turner.

In addition, SAGE published Editors' Choice Online, collections of articles designed to highlight the journal's most noteworthy manuscripts. The themed collections covered the following topics: climate change and environmental economics (10 articles), precarious employment (14 articles) and privatization (7 articles). The ELRR also benefits from SAGE's Online First facility, by which forthcoming articles are published online before they appear in print. SAGE's ELRR website provides information about the journal to subscribers and authors, and offers readers the opportunity to sign up for email alerts and RSS feeds.

The following IRRRC associates and board members supported the ELRR as editors or members of the Editorial Committee or International Advisory Board:

Professor Michael Quinlan
 Associate Professor Anne Junor
 Associate Professor Elisabetta Magnani
 Professor Michael O'Donnell
 Associate Professor Peter Kriesler
 Associate Professor Peter Sheldon
 Professor Lucy Taksa
 Emeritus Professor Geoffrey Harcourt
 Tim Harcourt
 Professor Michael Hess,
 Professor Michael O'Donnell
 Professor Michael Quinlan
 Associate Professor Ian Hampson
 Dr Sarah Gregson
 Dr Neil Hart
 Dr David Morgan
 Dr Alan Morris
 Dr Jocelyn Pixley
 Dr Shaun Wilson
 Professor Peter Fairbrother
 Professor Charles Woolfson

IRRC staff continued to provide administrative support to the journal.

ELRR Achievements

- The ELRR website <http://www.elrr.unsw.edu.au> was maintained as a guide to subscribing and submitting articles, and linked to the SAGE UK website.
- Following 2012 approval by Thomson Reuters of ELRR for inclusion in the Social Sciences Citation Index and Current Contents, the journal received its first impact factor rating of 0.130 in 2013. This rating was based on citations of articles published in 2011, before the journal raised its international profile via commercial web-based publication.

- The Australian School of Business continued to provide an annual grant of £8,000 to support the development of the journal's international profile with the assistance of SAGE UK.
- ELRR continued to receive the mentorship and active editorial support of distinguished Post-Keynesian and labour market economists including Professor G.C. Harcourt and JW Nevile. Dr Norbert Ebert joined the journal as a Book Review Editor, and Emeritus Professor Russell Lansbury joined the International Advisory Board.
- ELRR content continued to be diverse and topical. There were 89 original submissions via ScholarOne in 2013, with 60% from Australia. The rejection rate was 29% for 2013 submissions in ScholarOne. A small number of additional submissions were processed outside ScholarOne. The number of submissions received in 2013 was substantially greater than that for 2012 (55 in that year, plus 11 book reviews). In addition, because one of the four issues was a Festschrift for Professor John Nevile, a number of articles was processed outside ScholarOne and not included in this count.
- In April 2013, Anne Junor joined editors of other leading journals to give a presentation on behalf of ELRR at the International Labour and Employment Relations Association Asian Regional Congress.
- In 2013, the IRRRC received £1,084.59 in royalties from the publisher Sage. Under the terms of the contract, this represents 10% of earnings from the journal. Whilst it will take time to rebuild the subscription base following the transition to commercial publication, Sage were pleased enough to place ELRR in their premier collection for 2014. This should further boost distribution.

Objective 5. Engage with industry, community and government in the production and dissemination of research

Collaborations

The IRRRC was engaged in four main research projects in 2013 that resulted in the building of strong, ongoing working relationships.

- 1) Through the ARC Linkage Project, The Future of Aircraft Maintenance in Australia (LP110100335), Chief Investigators in the IRRRC, particularly Professor Michael Quinlan and Associate Professor Ian Hampson, were in ongoing regular communication with most Partner Organisations:
 - Aerospace Australia
 - The Aircraft Maintenance, Repair and Overhaul Business Association
 - The Association of Licensed Aircraft Maintenance Engineers in Australia
 - The Australian Manufacturing Workers Union
 - Manufacturing Skills Australia
 - TAFE NSW
 - The Transport and Logistics Centre
 - The Transport Workers Union

As well, a wider network of contacts was built, both in Australia and internationally, particularly in Sweden.

As part of this project, a mapping and survey was carried out of Maintenance, Repair and Overhaul organisations (MROs) in Australia. This resulted in ongoing communication with several MRO organisations.

- 2) Through the Linkage Project, Recognising the Skill in Jobs Traditionally seen as Unskilled (LP110200888), Associate Professors Hampson and Junor further cemented their working relationship with Industry Partners and other contacts across a range of industries. These included;
 - Manufacturing Skills Australia

- Service Skills Australia,
- Construction and Property Services Industry Skills Council
- United Voice

In addition, they consulted with the Council of Textile and Fashion Industries of Australia, the Textile Clothing and Footwear Industry Association, the Textile Clothing and Footwear Union of Australia, Building Services Contractors Association of Australia, Tourism and Hospitality Industry Advisory Committee, Restaurant and Catering Association and Public and private Registered Training Organisations providing programs for the TCF, Cleaning, and Hospitality industries.

In November 2013, working with colleagues Professors Erica and Andy Smith from Federation University, interim research results were presented for validation to a series of Industry Forums, resulting in the construction of a large network of ongoing contacts particularly in the area of Training Package development, review and delivery.

- 3) The Building Professional Skills Project resulted in the cementing of a strong working relationship between UNSW's Division of Finance and Operations and the IRRC and the School of Management. The team of Anne Junor, Ian Hampson, David Morgan, with consultant Philippa Hall, reported regularly to the Project Working Group of senior managers, and to a cross-functional Project Working Group, as well as to Divisional Forums.

In 2013, through a process of iterative consultation and rollout, an interactive website and Handbook were developed to allow the incorporation of the Building Professional Skills framework and toolkit into ongoing practice in the Division, in the fields of position description writing, recruitment and selection, performance development and learning and development.

- 4) In 2013 the IRRC continued its work for the Southwest Sydney Manufacturing and Engineering Skills Task Force. This involved working with Regional Development Australia (RDA) Parramatta to
- Attend Taskforce meetings
 - Map and survey local manufacturing and engineering employers. regarding regional skill and workforce development requirements.
 - Attend and present at breakfast briefings for local employers.

The survey was rolled out in 2 of the region's 5 LGAs, with the remainder to be covered in 2014 as mailing lists were compiled. Interim results were reported back to the Taskforce, which included representative members of:

- South Western Sydney Institute of TAFE,
- State Training Services,
- Manufacturing Skills Australia
- The Australia Industry Group
- The NSW Business Chamber,
- Business Enterprise Centres
- A number of advanced manufacturers, including from the aerospace industry..

A team of IRRC Associates participated— Anne Junor, and Dr Doug Fraser worked on the survey, whilst Professor Raja Junankar, Associate Professors Peter Sheldon and Elisabetta Magnani and Dr Tanya Carney, carried out background research on the relation between local manufacturing supply chains and global value networks. One aim was to develop an application for a 2015 Discovery grant.

This project, which overlapped with the aircraft maintenance project, resulted in close links to the Sydney Aerospace and Defence Interest Group. .

Outreach initiatives

- Contribution to disseminating symposium papers:
 - ELRR 24 (3) was based on a symposium on precarious employment held at Macquarie University in September 2012.
 - ELRR 24(4) was based on papers first developed for a workshop in Vietnam, funded by the Korean Government. Professor Chung-Sok Suh and Dr Seung-Ho Kwon of the Korean Research Institute at UNSW, Professor Michael O'Donnell (UNSW Canberra) and Professor Mark Turner (University of Canberra) worked with authors to make the papers publication-ready.
- Contribution to the Australian Society of Heterodox Economists Conference:*
- The Conference of the Society of Heterodox Economists took place at UNSW Campus 2-3 December 2013, and the IRRC staff provided administrative support..

Objective 6. Build our working relationships and international outreach

Highlights

Associates Resident in the IRRC: The Centre hosted 6 Visiting Associates, who made an invaluable contribution to the Centre's work: meritus Professor Raja Junankar, IZA (Institute for the Study of Labour, Bonn), formerly from UWS, joined the IRRC on a full-time basis in July 2012. During 2013 he provided ongoing mentorship on labour market analysis and the GFC, and played a very active role as an Executive Editor of ELRR. Professor Junankar worked also participated in collaboration with the Southwestern Sydney Manufacturing and Engineering Task Force. He provides the IRRC with a profile in The Ideas page of RePEc, (Federal Reserve Bank of St Louis). He also provided research supervision for an Honours student in the School of Economics, and for a PhD student in Arts.

Associate Professor Jocelyn Pixley, also a Visiting Professor at Macquarie, joined the IRRC in October 2012 and worked with IRRC Associate Shaun Wilson and Professor Geoff Harcourt (Economics) and Professor Sam Whimster of London Metropolitan University.to prepare a research proposal.

Associate Professor Craig Freedman, a published author, submitted several stimulating articles and reviews to ELRR

Associate Professor Anne Junor, who when not working on grant-funded research, served as Editor in Chief of ELRR and oversaw the day to day management of staff and finances

Dr Neil Hart, who published an important book on economist Alfred Marshall and worked hard as ELRR book review editor to mobilise a growing number of important contributions.

Dr Celia Briar, who worked pro bono on the Building Professional Skills website.

In late 2013, Professor John Lodewijks, formerly from Economics at UNSW and then UWS, was invited to join the IRRC, effective from 2014. Professor Lodewijks has played an active role on ELRR, including as a Guest Editor.

Mentorships

Professor Michael Quinlan, Emeritus Professor GC Harcourt, Emeritus Professor JW Nevile Professor Raja Junankar and Professor P. Kriesler continued to provide generous mentorship to Anne Junor, during the work of building the profile of ELRR.

Professor Michael O'Donnell worked with Korean Research Institute Director Professor Chung-Sok Su and Dr Seung-Ho Kwon (KRI) and Professor Mark Turner (University of Canberra) to develop the research and English-language publications skills of a group of Korean, Vietnamese and Malaysian scholars, resulting in subsequent submission to ELRR and publication in 24 (4).

Anne Junor mentored a PhD student in presenting to a major international conference, the Community, Work and Family Conference, Sydney, July, and in turning the presentation into an article submitted in late 2013 to an A-ranked journal.

Ian Hampson and Anne Junor engaged Dr Doug Fraser, a very proficient Early Career Researcher from the School of Business, Canberra, as a research assistant in several projects, with a view to collaborative publication.

Anne Junor and Doug Fraser provided a formally agreed 2 week mentorship, working on the aircraft maintenance MRO survey, to Kerry Barlow, Project Coordinator, Industry Skills Unit, Meadowbank TAFE. Ms Barlow provided further assistance analysing apprentice statistics, fulfilling the TAFE NSW in-kind contribution agreement with the ARC for this Linkage grant.

Donation of Royalties

In 2013 Associate Professor Peter Sheldon continued to donate to the IRRC the value ($2000) of royalties on two books, O'Leary and Sheldon (2012): Employer Power and Weakness: How the local and the global have shaped the meat industry and its industrial relations, VURRN Press, Ballarat Australia; and Peter Sheldon, Sunghoon Kim, Yiqiong Li and Malcolm Warner (eds) (2011), China's Changing Workplace: Dynamism, diversity and disparity, Routledge, London.

THE CENTRE'S OBJECTIVES FOR 2013-2015

- The Centre will focus on evidence-based research that addresses significant issues and problems at work, including innovative and ethical practices in workplaces and effective regulation of labour standards.
- It will engage in both individual and collaborative research projects including externally and competitively funded grants.
- The Centre will publish findings of this research in scientific journals and books.
- It will also provide the infrastructure for publishing an international journal on the intersection of economic, social and labour market policy debates.
- The Centre will disseminate the results of research in these fields to the wider community through media releases/social media, seminars/conferences, keynote addresses, industry forums, consultancies and reports.

Therefore, the 2013 research revenue (reported on actual basis) was significantly lower than that of 2012 but the total revenue (taking into account the accruals) was $53,900.
2. In 2013, the Centre received $15,000 research incentive support and internal funding contribution of $29,514 from the "Building Professional Skills" project (compared to contribution of $115,706 in 2012).
3. Decrease in people costs was attributed to reduction in both general and academic salary costs (no contractor engaged to conduct research in 2013).

In 2013 the IRRC occupied office space in the Quadrangle Building (Quad 1039). These were shared by the Deputy Director, the Editorial Co-ordinator, the Administrative Officer, Consultants, Research Assistants, an Adjunct Emeritus Professor and Visiting Scholars.

In addition the IRRC shares the following facilities with the Asia-Pacific Ubiquitous Healthcare Research Centre: a meeting room, printer/photocopier. Most Associates from inside and outside UNSW provided their own office space on or off campus.

This grant was managed through the School of Management, but significant work was done on it in the IRRC.

Presentations and consultations occurred with Partners Organisation meetings, with NARTOCOP (the National Aeroskills Recognised Training Organisations Community of Practice), and with the Sydney Aerospace and Defence Interest Group.

In 2013 intensive coding and data analysis took place of the 708 responses to the project's Wave 1, with major input from RAs Dr Doug Fraser and Tanya Carney. Research Assistant Tanya Carney coded the data and produced descriptive statistics for presentation to Partners.

Close research collaboration with Partner Organisations continued, analyzing primary administrative data, interpreting regulatory changes and their impacts, setting up Wave 2 of the survey of maintenance engineers, mapping surveying Maintenance, Repair and Overhaul organisations and helping analyzing the output from further interviews. A focus group discussion was held in December with aeroskills teaching staff.

The IRRC was responsible for five of the nine occupations in the study – chefs, waiters, hotel guest service agents, sewing machinists and cleaners. By the start of 2013, the industry, occupational and case study interviews had been completed. The next step, Phase 4 (analysis of the case study findings) was completed during the year, with feedback sought from Partner Organisations. In November Phase 5 Industry Forums were held to seek validation of the results.
